

- d. It contains antibodies that support immune function.

26. A nurse is educating a group of parents on the importance of nutrition in childhood growth. Which of the following statements best explains how nutrition affects a child's height?

- a. Nutritional deficiencies only impact height after puberty.
- b. Proper nutrition has no significant role in determining a child's height.
- c. Nutrition only affects weight and has little impact on height.

- d. Adequate nutrition ensures that growth hormones are effectively released, promoting normal height.

27. A teacher observes that a student is significantly shorter than peers of the same age. What is the most appropriate course of action?

- a. Advise the student to wear shoes with thicker soles
- b. Dismiss the concern, assuming it will resolve itself
- c. Encourage the student to play more sports
- d. Consult the student's parents about potential health issues

28. At what average age does breast development typically begin in girls, marking the onset of puberty?

a. 10 years

b. 11 years

c. 13 years

d. 12 years

29. Healthcare provider is discussing the types of breast milk with a postpartum mother. Which characteristic of colostrum should be highlighted during this discussion?

- a. It is produced after two weeks postpartum.
- b. It is the first milk and is crucial for newborn health.
- c. It has a low protein and vitamin A content.
- d. It contains high levels of carbohydrates and fats

30. A preterm infant is born weighing 2.2 kg. What is one reason why this infant's birth weight is lower than expected for a full-term baby?

- a. Hereditary factors
- b. Maternal nutrition
- c. Length of gestation
- d. Growth hormone deficiency

31. By what time is mature milk fully developed postpartum?

- a. After one month
- b. Within the first three days
- c. By one week
- d. By about two weeks

32. A nurse is measuring a child's height and weight at regular intervals. Which of the following best describes this process?

- a. Testing cognitive ability

b. Monitoring physical growth

c. Assessing development milestones

d. Evaluating emotional

33. At what stage does transitional milk occur postpartum?

a. From 10 to 14 days

b. From day 4 to day 10

c. After two weeks

d. From birth to day 3

34. A 1-year-old infant presents at a well-baby clinic. The nurse plans to measure the child's length. Which tool and method would be most appropriate?

a. Estimating length based on weight

b. Using a height chart and asking the child to stand

c. Using a scale to calculate length

d. Measuring supine using a special board or tape measure

35. Healthcare professional is assessing the nutrient composition of a mother's breast milk collected over 24 hours. What is the expected protein content during the transitional phase?

a. 2.0%

b. 1.0%

c. 1.5%

d. 3.0%

36. A nurse is educating a new mother about the benefits of colostrum. Which of the following statements should the nurse include to support the importance of colostrum for the newborn?

a. It is not necessary for newborns.

b. It is low in protein and vitamins.